Parowan app developers win Speed Pitch contest

by Kelsey KEENER

IRON COUNTY TODAY

LeeAnn and Mike Adams of Parowan won first place during the final round of the State Bank of Southern Utah Speed Pitch competition during the 32nd Annual Utah Rural Summit last week.

The final round of the competition featured the 10 finalists and a panel of seven judges, including Utah Governor Gary Herbert, Business Development Officer for SBSU Michelle Tullis, Founder of TouchMD and NOVI Home Kary Smith, Dean of the SUU Dixie Leavitt School of Business Mary Pearson, Creative Director for Decorworx Tenia Wallace and Executive Vice President, Founder of Grovix Jon Black and Chief Credit Officer for SBSU LaNor Warby.

Before the competition started, Richard Christianson was given an award recognizing his work in founding the SUU Entrepreneurship Leadership Council.

Finalists were given three minutes for a brief explanation of their business ideas and questions from judges. Each judge awarded two votes, and any participant who received a vote was able to choose from the various available prizes.

LeeAnn and Mike Adams won first place, receiving six votes, for their app: Mad Freight. They explained during their presentation, that the app is designed to help those in rural communities run errands such as grocery shopping or retrieving parts for equipment through ride sharing.

"The most ideal way to make money is for people who commute," LeeAnn Adams explained. "They can make deliveries on their way or people in rural communities like some of us, who frequently have to drive long distance to do their shopping, they can pick up other peoples' things or groceries on their way and help pay for their gas."

LeeAnn and Mike Adams received more than $5,000 in awards, including money to use for growing their business, an accounting membership and the audience choice award.

Other winners included: Kylee Wharton, Ignite Candles; Josh Price, Build-A-Course; Caleb Nelson, Romeo's Rickshaws; Dalton and Derek Dannel, Puppy Love app; Jenna and Jake Duncan, Geode Swimwear; Dallin West, Scented Medical Masks.

Price, an assistant professor of economics and finance at SUU, received the Governor's Choice Award for his idea for a program that would enable professors to build their courses, keep the rights to their courses and save students significant amounts of money on textbooks.

Utah Foster Care explains, encourages fostering process

by Trinity PAJÓN

IRON COUNTY TODAY

Last week Utah Foster Care held a meeting at the Cedar City Library.

Foster-Adoptive Consultant Amy Bates spoke about the process of becoming a foster parent.

The first step in the process, she said, is to have an initial consultation with a foster-adoptive consultant. The initial consultation takes roughly 45 minutes to an hour and is held in the home of the prospective foster parent. The foster parent could be single or married, living in a home that they own or rent. During the consultation the consultant would answer any questions the prospective foster parent might have, obtain basic information about the prospective foster parent, and give them paperwork to move forward with the process.

The second step, according to Bates, is participating in eight classes. The classes are held every three months in Cedar City and are held on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 5pm to 8pm. She said that the classes don't need to be completed all in the same month. Bates said that if a prospective foster parent completes four or five classes in person, it is possible that they could be eligible to complete the course online, if they talk to the instructor.

The third step she talked about was a home study. After all the paperwork and classes are completed, the office of licensing will come to the prospective foster parent's home to evaluate the fitness for incoming foster children. The two areas of evaluation include safety and space. The prospective foster parent must provide 40 square feet of space per room and per child. For instance, if two children were to share a room, the room must be at least 80 square feet wide.

Bates also expanded on the rules for bringing a foster child into the home. If the child is under two years old, they may stay in the same room as the foster parents or a room with the opposite sex. However, if the child is over the age of two, they must stay in a room separate from the foster parents and with the same sex. The prospective foster parent must also provide proof of income as well as a medical report to show that they are able to take care of the children.

According to Bates, the average length of placement of a foster child is a year. The prospective foster parents are given an application prior to fostering. On the application, they are able to specify their preferences on foster care placement including the length of placement, the age group, and the behaviors they are able to handle.

Amy Bates then turned the time over to two foster moms to share their experiences on taking in foster children.

Foster mom Vicki Nelson became a foster parent with her husband six years ago. Since becoming a foster parent, Nelson has taken in many teenagers into her family while raising her own teenagers.

"We had quite a few teenagers in high school and it was a circus, but it worked out great," she said. "All our kids did fine with that."

"...there are a lot of people that don't realize that fostering is really around"

» Sarah Jade

Nelson said that she eventually adopted two teenage girls into her family. She said that her adoptive daughters have enjoyed the responsibility they have gained from working on the family farm as well as the structure of the home.

Foster mom Sarah Jade also shared her experiences. She spoke about her childhood, growing up in a family that fostered children. She said that it was a normal family dynamic to her, and to this day she still calls her foster sisters, her sisters.

She said that her sisters came from traumatic backgrounds and her family was able to help them through these hard times by offering them a safe place and a family to be a part of. She talked about how this has influenced her to become a foster mom.

"Now that I am an adult, I see that there are a lot of people that don't realize that fostering is really around," she said. "They don't realize how prominent it is or the need for it."

Jade adopted two teenage girls that were under her foster care. Every year her family celebrates the day that the teenage girls were adopted. She said that they have named the occasion "Got you day," and they have recently celebrated their first one.

Utah Foster Care is a state-wide non-profit organization that is dedicated to recruiting, training and retaining foster parents in order to provide safe placement for children in

from D.A.R.

FOR IRON COUNTY TODAY

There are two documents of paramount importance to American history: The Declaration of Independence, which forged our national identity, and the United States Constitution, which set forth the framework for the federal government that is still in use today. While Independence Day, the 4th of July, is a beloved national holiday, fewer people know about Constitution Day on September 17th.

The Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR) initiated the observance of Constitution Week in 1955, when the organization petitioned the U.S. Congress to dedicate September 17–23 of each year to the commemoration of Constitution Week. Congress adopted the resolution, and on August 2, 1956, President Dwight D. Eisenhower signed it into Public Law #915. The celebration's goals are threefold: 1) to encourage the study of the historical events that led to the framing of the Constitution in September, 1787; 2) to inform people that the Constitution is the basis of America's great heritage and the foundation of our way of life;

3) and to emphasize U.S. citizens' responsibility to protect, defend and preserve the Constitution.

DAR has been the foremost advocate for the awareness, promotion and celebration of Constitution Week. To celebrate this year's Constitution Day and Week, Iron County's local Bald Eagle Chapter of DAR has created a Constitution display that will be in the Cedar City Library throughout the month of September, and they have organized presentations and proclamation signings in our local schools and cities.

If you, or your organization, are interested in information, a proclamation signing or a presentation relating to the U.S. Constitution, then please contact the Bald Eagle Chapter of DAR at baldeaglechapter@gmail.com or tiffaniamatthews@yahoo.com.

Come celebrate the foundation of America with us. By fostering knowledge of and appreciation for the Constitution and the inalienable rights it affords to all Americans, DAR helps to keep alive the memory of the men and women who secured our nation's independence, whose bravery and sacrifice made possible the liberties we enjoy today.

GHOSTS IN THE MACHINES

The opinions stated in this article are solely those of the author and not of Iron County Today.

This is a reader's tale of a frustrating visit to a fast-food restaurant. But first...a neighbor approached me last week to announce he and his wife were first-time parents. A boy, he gleefully announced to me.

"Congratulations," I answered. "You better get started now on dad assignments. Get ready for coaching Little League baseball."

He laughed but said he wasn't worried. Today's young boys and girls, he said, were much less likely than his (or my) generation to participate in youth sports.

He's correct. National and local reports show children and teens are less likely to recreate in a variety of sports. Football and baseball are down. After steady increases, youth soccer has shown a dip nationally. Golf courses are closing and tennis courts are often unused. Basketball participation has leveled off. One of the only school-sanctioned sports to show any uptick is cross country/track.

The problem, according to an executive with an outdoor industry association, is that children spend upwards of four hours a day in front of electronic screens and an increasing number of parents are afraid to send their children outside of their home.

The computer, of course, has led to many advancements. However, along with the drop in sports and outside participation, I am also afraid that the "instant information" age has made many youth less curious and unable to solve problems creatively or face challenges.

And that brings me back to the fast-food restaurant.

A reader said he entered a Utah eatery and, without looking at the menu board,

Cyclops

by Bryan GRAY

ordered a banana split. The teenager behind the counter replied that the fast-food joint didn't make them.

"Let's look at it this way," said the reader. "You have soft-serve ice cream. You have bananas for your fresh banana malts. You have strawberry, chocolate, and caramel toppings for your sundaes. You also have nuts and maraschino cherries."

"Of course," said the employee.

"So, all you have to do is slice a banana in half, place it next to the same amount of ice cream you use for a malt, and put those toppings and nuts on it. Voila! You have a banana split."

Figuring the reader was a crank, the employee called for his manager who gave him the same answer. "Yes, we have all the ingredients, but we can't make one," she said.

In a competitive business climate, one would think businesses would fall all over themselves to meet simple customer requests. Yet a similar story happened at a local Red Lobster where the manager (since fired) refused to substitute rice or a vegetable for the fries on a fish 'n chips order even though every other item on the menu gave the customer the option. ("Fish 'n Chips comes with fries; I can't change that!")

Some of you may remember the famous scene from "Five Easy Pieces" in which Jack Nicholson, at the restaurant that didn't serve toast in the afternoon, asked for a chicken salad sandwich on toast – and hold the chicken salad!

Tim Gunn, the former host of the popular cable show "Project Runway" was famous for telling aspiring designers to just "make it work." I often feel we have lost that desire to satisfy the customer or the family or the co-worker or the neighbor. We rely on a machine, not our brains.

Sometimes we have to think without looking at a screen to tell us what to do.

What a Grand Idea

COREY BAUMGARTNER
MANAGING EDITOR

Last Sunday was Grandparents Day. Thankfully I was able to visit with my Grandma for a few moments. Over the years I've been blessed by her wisdom and friendship. It's something I cherish more than just once a year. While not all of us have grandparents to visit with, (you can share mine) I hope that we can still enjoy each other's company and wisdom from those both younger and older.

Whether we are Generation X, Y, Z, or a Baby Boomer and beyond, I hope we will also strive to do more connecting, respecting and protecting of each other, no matter what generation we're from. I hope we'll also learn to forgive each other more readily

"I hope that we can still enjoy each other's company and wisdom" so that generational gaps don't turn into canyons of contention. After all, we're each in this community, life and on this planet collectively. Seems like a grand idea to make the most of our time here together.

Do you have a great grandparent's story or timely wise wisdom? Send it to us! Email: news@ironcountytoday.com

Neck Fire grows to 19,000 acres

THE NECK FIRE NEAR LUND continues to burn but is hoped to be contained soon by the hundreds of people working to keep it from growing out of control.

KELSEY KEENER

by Kelsey KEENER

IRON COUNTY TODAY

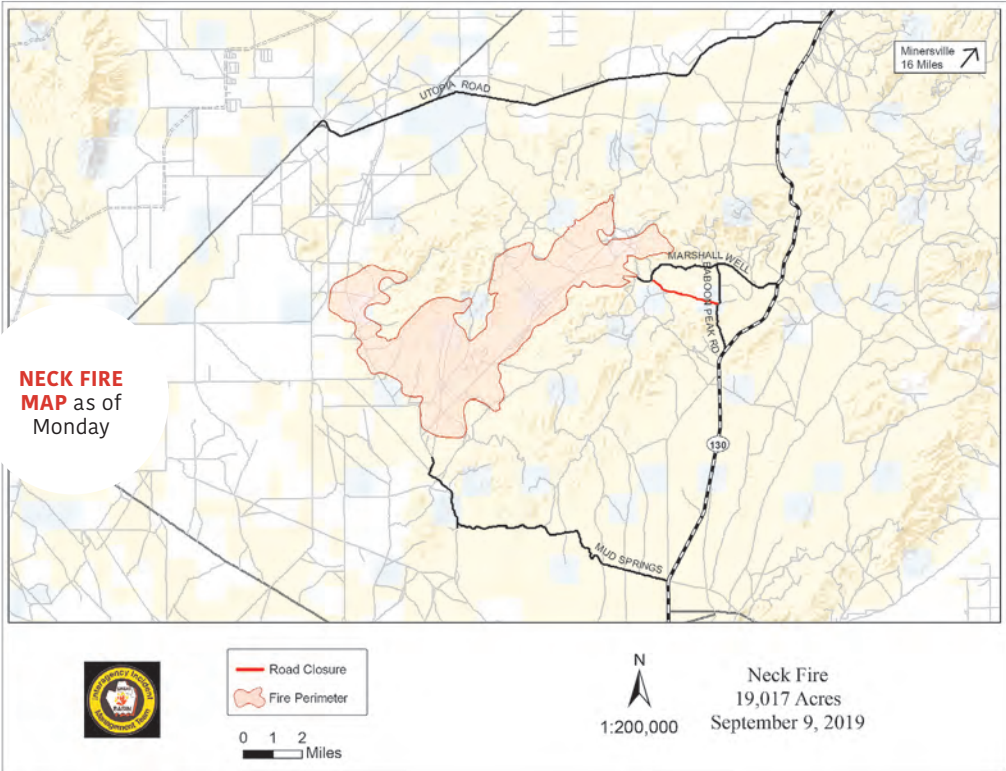

As of Monday morning, the Neck Fire, located 15 miles west of Lund, had grown to 19,017 acres and was 30 percent contained. The fire began last Thursday evening, started by lightning during a storm. No structures have been damaged and none are currently at risk. There are 339 people working to contain the fire, including six helicopters, 15 fire engines, seven water tenders and six hand crews.

According to the Interagency Incident Management Team for the Great Basin, little growth was seen Sunday but crews are still patrolling the perimeter and maintaining suppression efforts.

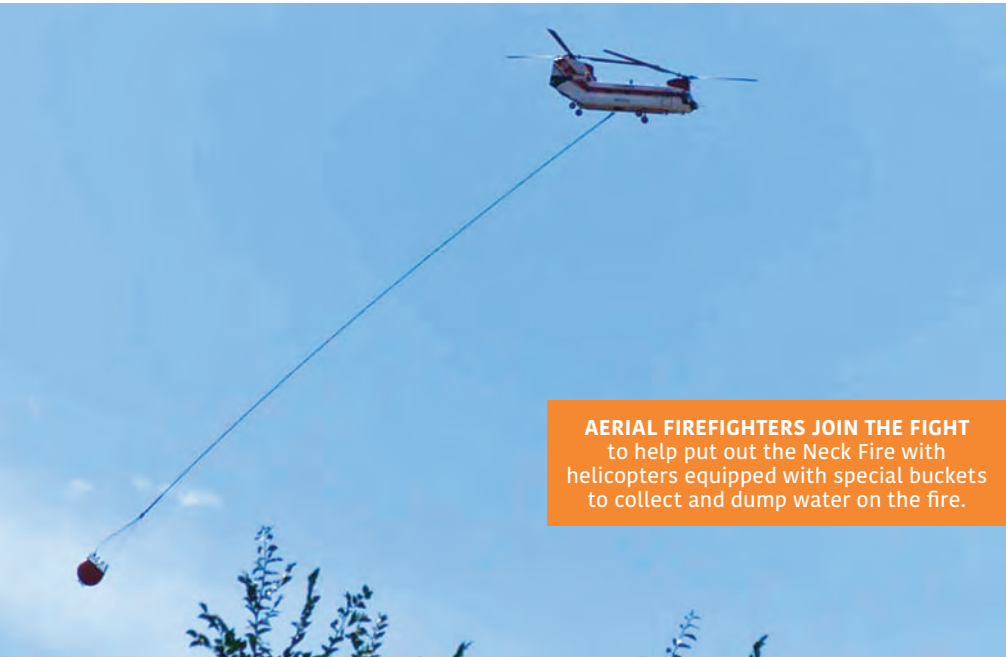

On Monday morning, Public Information Officer for the U.S. Forest Service Jose Acosta said the red flag warning for wind conditions is expected to create a dryer environment during the beginning of this week.

“It’s much more likely the fuel will be dryer, the brush and the bushes will be dryer and they’re more likely to burn overnight,” he said. “And they won’t recover so they’ll be dryer the next day. (There are) people positioned around the perimeter for the most likely places the fire will grow to try to prevent it from happening in those areas.”

Many unpaved roads around the fire are closed for public safety. Officials encourage the public to be cautious with any activities involving fire or off-roading in the area. Drivers are urged to slow down -- but not stop -- if traveling in the area on Highway 130. In order to allow firefighters to do their jobs safely and effectively, community members are asked to keep their distance from the fire, particularly so helicopters can retrieve and deliver water.

Uniqueness key factor in economic development of communities

by Kelsey KEENER

IRON COUNTY TODAY

Senior Resident Fellow for the Urban Land Institute Ed McMahon spoke at the Utah Rural Summit in the “Power of Uniqueness” as it relates to successful communities.

McMahon started by discussing his experience in the military and spending time in Germany and in helicopters and how it affected his view of America. He added that attendees of the summit likely wouldn’t be at the summit if Utah wasn’t special.

“There is no place left in the world today that will stay special by accident and the reason for that is because the world is changing faster than ever,” he said. “... Everything is changing, everything: technology, the economy, demographics, consumer attitudes, health care, travel and tourism, energy, transportation, the weather is changing.”

He continued by saying change is inevitable and communities can either grow by chance or by choice.

“You can just accept whatever comes along or you can plan the future that you want,” he said.

McMahon said choices about where to invest, what or whom to design around and where to encourage growth and development, whether to bring in new business or build up the existing businesses are some of the choices communities have when it comes to growth. He explained that economic development has become asset-based and suggested that education is the most important infrastructure investment.

He added that communities are in global competition to attract businesses and retain talented workers.

“New investments are seeking places based on the quality of place rather than the utility of location,” he said. “... If you can’t differentiate yourself, you’re going to have no competitive advantage.”

Using the example of Austin, Texas’s slogan “Keep Austin Weird,” McMahon explained that “sameness” is no longer an advantage.

“The image of a community is fundamentally important to its economic well-being,” he said. “And what do I mean by that? What I mean is that every single day in America, people make decisions about where to live, where to invest, where to vacation, where to retire based on what our communities look like.”

He added that preserving the history of

Lt. Gov. Cox visits Iron County, helps with service projects

by Kelsey KEENER

IRON COUNTY TODAY

Representatives from Iron County Republican Women and Cedar City Corporation organized a service project that was part of Lieutenant Governor Spencer Cox’s 248-city tour.

Community members from Iron County were invited to help revitalize Park Discovery last Wednesday evening and discuss concerns with Lt. Governor Cox. During the event, he commented on the importance of giving back.

“What really matters is, this is how we make our communities better,” he said. “This is how we make our communities, by coming together, volunteering and giving back.”

He added that when he decided to run for governor, he wanted to make a point to visit all incorporated towns and cities, as he comes from a small town that rarely received visits from candidates for governor. Lt. Governor Cox added that his goal is to try to do multiple service projects in each county because it can provide a unique opportunity to talk with voters.

“You can get people to a service project that you probably couldn’t get to a campaign rally because they care about their community and that gives us an opportunity to talk about issues that are important to them,” he said. “So, as we’re painting tonight, I had school teachers talking to me about issues at their school, people talking about testing; we’ve loved it. It’s a way to help improve our communities and remind people that Utah leads the nation in volunteerism.”

communities is a significant factor in tourism, as well.

"A city or town without a past is like a man without a memory," he said. "... Saving the historic buildings of Utah is about saving the heart and soul of Utah, but it's also incredibly good for your economy as well. ...Tourists simply won't go to a city or town that's lost its soul."

McMahon said many communities are starting to use the available spaces in unique ways, such as painting murals on bridges and buildings, using abandoned factories as business office spaces and using original designs for large chain stores.

He concluded his presentation by providing his secrets for successful communities.

"Successful communities always have a vision for the future," he said. "... Successful visions always begin by inventorying your assets and savvy communities build all their plans around the enhancement of what they've already got. Successful communities also use education, incentives, partnerships and voluntary initiatives, not just regulation. ... Successful communities pick and choose, because all development is not created equal."

McMahon said success also comes from teamwork and leadership.

"Successful communities cooperate with their neighbors, stop fighting the county and the city and work together for mutual benefit," he said. "Successful communities have strong leaders and committed citizens. A vision is important but implementation is priceless."

Shelby Crockett's CURIOUS CREATIONS

by Shay BARUFFI
IRON COUNTY TODAY

Groovacious Art Wall Gallery is hosting Shelby Crockett's imaginative artwork this September and October. Shelby Crockett has lived in the state of Utah her entire life. She was born in Orem, grew up in Cedar City, moved to St. George, and now resides in Provo with her husband, children, and animals. According to her artist's statement: "I take elements of style from 19th century woodcut illustrations, common renaissance and pre-renaissance motifs, and even modern comics."

Crockett received her degree in Illustration and Biology from Southern Utah University and she combines her love for these subjects in her artwork. While she dabbles in several themes, her most recent art focuses on folklore, nature and family. Shelby Crockett's exhibit at the Art Wall Gallery in Groovacious features several of her Tarot card illustration series, the Witches Series, and pieces focusing on nature. Visit Shelby Crockett's website at <http://crockettcreations.squarespace.com>. Go view her display at Groovacious (195 W 650 S #2, Cedar City) throughout September and October.

SHELBY CROCKETT IS THE LATEST ARTIST to grace the Groovacious Art Wall Gallery with her creative and curious creations.

USF invites guests to help the less fortunate

from Donn JERSEY

FOR IRON COUNTY TODAY

CEDAR CITY — The Utah Shakespeare Festival is once again collecting food for the less fortunate in our community. The seventeenth annual Fall Food Drive will be September 10 to October 12, with a goal to raise as much food as possible for the Iron County Care and Share.

Local residents can participate by donating six items of nonperishable food per individual on the day of the performance directly to the Festival and receive a half-price ticket to any Monday through Thursday performance. Food donation barrels will be located in the lobby of the Eileen and Allen Anes Studio Theatre, near the ticket office.

"The support of our community is so critical to the success of the Utah Shakespeare Festival Fall Food Drive," said Donn Jersey, director of development and communication.

"Since 2003 the Festival has provided a program allowing generous and caring playgoers to see great theatre and support those less fortunate through our annual fall food drive. And over the years, our guests have demonstrated time and time again their generosity and support of those in need by supplying food as part of a ticket purchase."

Residents of Iron, Washington, Kane, Garfield, Sevier, Piute, and Beaver counties in Utah are eligible for the discount, as well as guests from Lincoln County, Nevada. All residents should bring proof of residency and six nonperishable food items for each discounted ticket they wish to purchase. This offer is good Monday through Thursday on the day of the performance only. There is a limit of four discounted tickets per resident I.D.

Now who are you again?"

by Mary Anne ANDERSEN

CEDAR CITY ARTS COUNCIL

For some reason, I'm better with the young men's names than I am with the women. Southern Utah University began on August 26 and I met four classes of about seventeen students each in the first two days. No problem with orientation, distributing syllabi, going over class procedures, etc.—all that stuff done in the first week of school. But trying to keep the correct names attached to the right faces is a problem.

It seems that the names of the guys are easier than the girls. They wear hats, or are either very tall or short, sport tattoos, or wear distinctive clothing. The young women, on the other hand, sort of all look alike to me. Occasionally, I will have a girl with bright pink hair or an extreme dressing style, but mostly it seems that they all have shoulder length blonde or brown hair and clothes that all came off the same sales rack. After about the third class I am hopelessly trying to keep my Tori's and my Jessica's straight. One oddity this semester is two Riley's, one male and one female—in the same class.

Last year was the year of the K's. I had a Kylie, a Kaley, Kinley, Kallie, and Katie. I think some days I just looked in a student's direction and said Kaley, and hoped she would respond. This semester I have a new one: Kadee, who sits not far from this year's Katie, and they can't tell from my pronunciation which one I mean. I need to turn up the volume a bit or enunciate more clearly the difference between my d's and my t's.

It helps when they sit in the same seat from class to class. We all do that in church, don't we? If you are looking for a particular family in church you know exactly which pew to eyeball. It's the same in school; sit in the same desk twice and there is an unspoken understanding that it is yours. That helps. I tried asking them to wear the same outfit for three weeks but no dice.

If experience is any indication, I will have the names learned in three weeks or so. And since the courses are two semesters long, I might have just a few new students to learn in the spring. What IS hard is remembering names of students from years past.

I need to get smarter at handling that dreaded encounter when a young man or woman approaches me in public with an enthusiastic, "Mrs. Andersen. Hi!" They seem so confident that I know them, but alas, I often don't. I need to say immediately, "Say your name" and then we can converse on common ground. But it is awkward if I let too much time pass; you can't ask for a name after you've talked for eight minutes. "Now who are you?" So, I must apologize to that nice young man who just high-fived me on the street. Thank heaven he was in a hurry and didn't want to talk.

Poet, Playwright Dan O'Brien reading in Cedar City

from Nemo TAGGART

FOR IRON COUNTY TODAY

I'm so pleased to help host PEN America, Guggenheim, and NEA Fellow poet and playwright Dan O'Brien at the Southern Utah Museum of Art (SUMA) on Tuesday, September 17, at 7 p.m.

Many thanks to Utah Humanities, SUMA, SUU Art of Literature, and supporters of Sugar House Review for their support in this endeavor. There will be a Q&A as well as a reception with refreshments after the reading.

Please share this with anyone that you think might be interested. The event is free and all are encouraged to attend. Dan is incredible and fuses voice adaptation, poetic line and device, and dramatic monologue in ways that I've never seen from a contemporary writer.

GREAT AMERICAN STAMPEDE —2019—

IT WAS TWO NIGHTS OF THE BEST collegiate men and women wranglers and ropers during the Great American Stampede. SUU joined colleges from around the region at the Iron Rangers Arena and there were plenty of hooves, horns and hide to go around. The awed audiences were also entertained by the great rodeo clown Randee Munns, the expert horsemanship of Chris Hone and the Diamond Z English Shire horses and a magnificent mustang act from Bobby Kerr.

Solar glasses for sale (unused)

Do you remember the Great American Solar Eclipse in 2017? If you attended the eclipse party at the Cedar City Main Street Park, you remember that cloudy skies caused an eclipse of their own, leaving the event unseen and solar glasses unused. The D.J. tried to revive the heavenly-hoodwinked hopefuls with Bonnie Tyler's "Total Eclipse of the Heart", and Bon Jovi's, "Living on a Prayer", but there would be no blaze of glory. Eventually, the let-down crowd stopped looking upwards and headed for home. Rain added insult to injury. Later, hats and apparel with the words, "Where were you?" began finding their way to clothing store clearance racks.

Where were you during the "great" eclipse? Did you eagerly watch the sky awaiting the so-called "once-in-a-lifetime" event? Did you purchase solar glasses and pack a picnic, or avoid the panic of the people-packed places altogether? Perhaps you perched on your porch, or took a road trip to capture the uncommon phenomenon? Were you one of the lucky few to view it? If so, congratulations.

If not, I understand that missing once-in-a-lifetime events can not only be dramatic, but traumatic. Missing out on opportunities you've been waiting for and preparing for—whether for a day or a decade—can make you feel like all that time invested was wasted. Those feelings can bring up questions about other investments you've made and are making in your life. Questions not only asking about where you have been, but where are you now and where you are headed. Do you have dreams, goals, opportunities, and relationships that you feel have been eclipsed by busyness, laziness, fear, or unforgiveness?

Maybe you missed out on marriage or lost the one you had. Maybe you found out you can't have the family you always wanted or feel like you can't be with the family you do have. What skills and opportunities need a revival? Perhaps a burial?

Some people predicted the eclipse would be the end of the world. If you're reading this you're obviously safe, for now. Maybe someday the world will be ended by a rogue asteroid, mysterious virus, zombie apocalypse, or great spiritual phenomenon. Nevertheless, it's not how you will die, but how you will live until then. Be careful not to wander around wondering "what if", or play broken records of, "I should have". Those cloudy conversations will only continue to eclipse other special events in your life waiting and wanting your attention and devotion.

Remember that your life is a once-in-a-lifetime event. Make the most of the rest of it. No matter how long it takes, I hope you will have the courage and strength to get out of the ruts of doubt, fear and anything else eclipsing your life. Let your light and life shine again. Maybe I'll see you at the next U.S. eclipse on April 8, 2024. If I haven't sold my solar glasses before then, I'll gladly share mine with you.

row), daughter Angelina Tarufelli (not pictured), granddaughter Amber Fox and great-granddaughter Willow Fox (bottom middle) still reside in Cedar City. "I think it's wonderful I'm still alive to see my great-granddaughter. My parents are still around and they're still functional and in good health. I just love having everybody here, it's really nice," Cindy said.

August and holding

Where did they go, the Spring and Summer months? I'm not sure but I think it must have been March or maybe February that I wrote my last column and ya know what? I've missed all of you. So much has happened since then that I really don't know how to start this column—but here goes!

The 2018 Yeti #10 WSTR Finale made its mark when it awarded the single largest paycheck in the history of Team Roping, a whopping $376,000 to Hank Robins and his partner, Colton Robins, both of Aurora, Utah, but no relation. I have no idea what YETI stands for or means but it must be an exciting part of rodeos to have a WORLD Series event for Western Team Roping.

Anyway, over the course of three days and after winning in several other Roping events with different roping partners and after the money was split, Hank took home a total of $310,250.00.

Around THE CORNER

by Bernice REMBER

COLUMNIST

I know this because he is married to my Granddaughter, Bonnie Rember. Both Hank and Bonnie graduated from SUU.

When asked what it feels like to make history by winning two of the highest paying roping divisions of all time? “I think I am going to turn my horse loose by the river and retire.” laughed Hank, who works full time as a financial advisor for a well-known Company in the Richfield area. “I’m used to handling big money, but not my own,” he stated.

Hank and Bonnie live in Aurora with their little daughter, Reannon. They recently purchased the local Subway franchise. “My wife does all the work there, I just go in and eat the cookies,” says Hank.

I think it is really special when people you know and care about have what it takes to make a dream come true. When asked why he was sure he and his roping friends would win the big Money at the YETI Finale Hank stated it was because they had practiced and were prepared! Well done ‘y’all’!

IRON COUNTY SCHOOL DISTRICT

EAST ELEMENTARY

We are in full swing at East Elementary. September brings with it an intensified focus on reading. We are anxious for our students to develop a love of reading and to always be on the lookout for their next big adventure! Our PTA has a great award program that makes it possible for students to earn prizes all year. The culmination is to receive a t-shirt and become a member of our Golden Eagles! Our teachers are also providing a great atmosphere for reading as pictured in Mrs. King's fifth grade classroom! Have an amazing year Eagles and we hope you find some wonderful books!

SOUTH ELEMENTARY

Our South Elementary Reading Specialist and Reading Aides have been working hard assessing our students for their beginning of the year reading levels and are thrilled with the results. Our PE Specialist, Mrs. Bell, has started teaching our students Yoga Calm during PE time and the students are loving it!

CANYON VIEW MIDDLE SCHOOL

The last few weeks have been full of great learning activities. Students have really embraced our Cougar Path (Safe, Kind, Responsible) program.

Please encourage your child to come to Math Counts. This is a great way to make friends and put their math skills to work. They meet on Thursdays in Mrs. Sander's room. There are a lot of other great after school clubs. Sign Language club is in Mrs. Roundy's room. The sign language club was organized by a student - in our 6th grade who is deaf - and his mom. Many members of the community are also helping assist any student who wants to join the club and learn sign language. This is a free club run by volunteers. Please join us as we look forward to learning new communication skills. Science Olympiad can be found in Mrs. Lambert's room on Tuesdays. The First Lego League is meeting in Mr. Levie's room on Wednesdays. This is a great place to learn teamwork, out of the box thinking and about computer programming and coding.

Midterm is just around the corner. Please continue encouraging your child to finish all practice assignments. They will then prove their mastery of the material. Do not forget - All test/assessment scores will be recorded in Mastery Connect.

ENOCH ELEMENTARY

5th Graders visited Cedar Breaks National Monument this week. They learned about the geological processes that formed the canyon. They also learned how to use observational skills to identify types of trees in the forest.

This year's new PAWS Assembly will encourage school pride and positive traits. The SUU Cheer Squad taught students our new school cheer. The Paws Patrol, along with our soon-to-be-named mascot, will be patrolling the halls and playgrounds looking for students doing good and willing to help others. Students will vote for a name for our new tiger mascot.

This month's theme is Self-Control. The Enoch tigers that show this trait will be named Tiger of the Month.

Thank you to Mrs. Marcy Christensen and the Reading teachers for a smooth and successful Acadience reading test session!

Please contact our PTA if you would like to purchase a Starving Student Card to support our school.

THREE PEAKS ELEMENTARY

Three Peaks Elementary will hold Vision and Dental Screenings on Thursday, September 19 and Hearing Screenings on September 25. (The State of Utah has changed rules for parents who wish to opt out of vision screening. When a parent chooses to not have their student screened, they must complete a form and it must be submitted every year they choose not to have their child screened. Opt out forms are available in the TPE main office.) We would like to thank our wonderful school nurse, Crystal Shakespeare, and all the other district nurses for organizing these annual events. We appreciate all that they do to keep our students healthy so that they are able to learn the content needed in each subject and in every grade level.

NEH awards SUU grants totaling nearly $200,000

from David BISHOP

FOR IRON COUNTY TODAY

CEDAR CITY — This year, Southern Utah University was the only institution in Utah to receive not one, but two grants from the National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH). These two grants, totaling nearly $200,000, will support Utah Project Archaeology and the Southern Utah Museum of Art (SUMA). This is the first time SUU has received a grant from NEH.

The first NEH grant was awarded to SUMA under Museum Director and Curator Jessica Farling for $3,196. This money will be used to purchase a specialized storage cabinet to house around 1,900 pieces of SUMA's permanent collection.

"SUMA is thrilled to have received this grant to help further our mission of being an educational and cultural resource for the students of SUU and our communities across the region," said Farling. "This funding will be used to purchase new archival cabinets and equipment to preserve objects in our permanent collection, particularly three-dimensional Native American works by Marie Poveka Martinez and Allan Houser."

Within an hour of receiving the first grant, SUU was notified that they had earned a second NEH grant for Utah Project Archaeology, under Coordinator Samantha Kirkley. This second grant,

South Elementary sets benchmark for friendship

by Corey BAUMGARTNER

IRON COUNTY TODAY

The South Elementary Eagles' school song and motto talk about being kind. To help implement this important virtue into the students' lives at school and at home they have built and placed "Friendship Benches" around the school playground.

No one can have too many friends and the Friendship Benches provide places where kids can go to find a new friend and get comfort while having a bad day, or share their news about a good day. Jim Lunt, play-

Bench. He also expressed that if the teachers are having a bad day, or the lunch ladies burn the biscuits, they are more than welcome to sit on the bench and find some comfort from a friend.

The excited Eagles took full ownership of the benches by not only by helping to pay Mr. Lunt back, but by assembling the benches themselves, together with his tools and assistance. During the process the students got to take turns being a foreman and a worker bee. "Use these benches and be a friend to everybody," he encouraged. Lunt also ground supervisor and volunteer at the school, purchased and donated the benches and explained their positive purposes.

"Kids shouldn't come to school and be alone, they should have friends," he said. So if you're having a bad day because you failed a test, or you didn't have breakfast, or you're feeling picked or feeling ornery, you can go sit on a bench and someone will know you need a friend. They can come put their arm around you and say, 'hey, what's wrong, I want to be your friend.'"

Lunt explained that kids can also sit on the bench if they've had a great day and want to share good news about passing a test, or getting a puppy and perhaps even one day getting engaged at the Friendship promised that if the students wear out the benches by being a friend, he will buy them new ones. Special plaques on the benches include honoring the late Ken and Georgia Bettridge as dear friends of the school and community. "Friends to all. Friends forever. Ken and Georgia Bettridge. Mr. and Mrs. K.B."

As a special surprise for Mrs. Linda Marriott and the school's reading program, Mr. Lunt donated the money back to the school. However, he first went to many of his great friends throughout Cedar City and asked for additional donations. Thanks to the help of a "Magic Envelope" and each of their generous donations, a total of nearly $700 was given to Mrs. Marriot to help the students learn to read.

FAITH

I have been there

JOHN 3:16, MATTHEW 27

The temple was torn in two and the earth quaked. Jesus was dead, but not before His work in mortality was finished. Through His love and loss, mankind was granted victory over sin and death. Jesus' love also built a bridge of mercy and grace that will lead each of us back home.

When the Atonement of Jesus Christ is spoken of, it is often the sufferings of our Savior that we focus on and give thanks for. However, there was One other who suffered as great in His own way. How indescribably difficult it must have been for God to watch His Only Begotten and Beloved Son suffer and die. Even knowing that it must come to pass and that all would be well in the end, it did not make His pain any less great.

It must have been agonizing knowing He could stop it in an instant and end Jesus' suffering, yet He allowed it to continue. It may seem a simple question, why didn't God stop it and save His Son? Because He also loved and loves each of us so much to let it continue and be completed. For God, also our Father, knew that our happiness and salvation were eternally intertwined in that final selfless sacrifice by our beloved Savior.

Sadly, there are times in our lives when we also lose loved ones, even our precious children. My heart aches for those who have lost a child. As I get older, I realize that I may not have a chance to witness miraculous first steps from a child I helped create, get to walk my daughter down the aisle, teach my son how to honor himself and womanhood, or own a fridge decorated with priceless-to-me artwork. That being said, I cannot begin to imagine how difficult it must be to have created or want to create precious memories with your child and have them taken home too soon. I do not know how difficult or deep your pain, but please know that God knows. He knows what it's like to lose a child and He will not leave you comfortless.

I pray your pain may be tempered with gratitude for those first steps, first cheers, and even one miraculous moment you were blessed to share with your special angel. Now, as you take your first steps without them, let God take you by the hand and heart and steady you as you walk forward into an unknown future. Unknown, but not uncertain, because one thing is certain; He will carry you as you carried and cared for His special child entrusted to your heart and home. His arms will hold and help you until you are back home and together again. May you hear God's loving reminder, especially in these darkest hours, "I have been there." As your child is there home with Him now, He will be here with you now and always.

USU Cedar City hires Tim Hatch as full-time professor

from Dana RHOADES
FOR IRON COUNTY TODAY

CEDAR CITY — Utah State University (USU) Cedar City named Tim Hatch a program coordinator and professional practice assistant professor for their associate of applied science in nursing program that prepares students for licensure as Registered Nurses (RNs). Previous to this position, Hatch worked as an RN in surgical services. "At first, I was nervous I was going to be alone in Cedar City," said Hatch. "After about ten minutes in my first day, I realized I am well connected to a supportive team through technology. We are able to collaborate and help one another. I have never experienced anything quite like it. It's amazing to see people so far away from each other who are so connected." USU Cedar City's nursing programs continue to grow, largely in part to the partnership with Southwest Technical College (Southwest Tech).

Hatch works closely with Southwest Tech to ensure students are successfully going through each institutions' nursing programs.

Hatch's main priority is to prepare students to pass the state's licensing board exams. "There is a lot of book knowledge the students need to have, but they also need to learn the human aspect of being a nurse," said Hatch. "If I can teach these students to be kind and compassionate, and to be leaders among nurses, I will feel very accomplished." Along with teaching nursing theory courses, Hatch will be responsible for preparing and organizing clinical sites and overseeing other instructors.

Free workshop provides effective strategies for dealing with Dementia

by Heather COX

FOR IRON COUNTY TODAY

Family caregivers are the backbone of community-based services providing over $450 billion of unpaid services across this nation. To support our local family caregivers of people with dementia, Area Agency on Aging is offering a workshop developed by the Rosalynn Carter Institute for Caregiving (RCI). The Dealing with Dementia Workshop provides tips and strategies for caregivers on best practices for caring for their loved ones and themselves.

"Most family caregivers assume the care of a loved one without access to needed training and education," said Gayle Alston, Director of RCI Training Center for Excellence. "Caregiving for a loved one is a rewarding and loving experience. However, due to the physical and emotional demands of caregiving and the struggles specific to dementia care, caregivers often suffer high levels of stress and depression. The goal for the Dealing with Dementia Caregiver Workshop is for Alzheimer's and dementia family caregivers to gain a better understanding of dementia, utilize strategies to effectively manage dementia behaviors, and develop habits of stress management and self-care.

Caregivers who attend the four-hour workshop will receive a copy of the new Dealing with Dementia Guide. This guide provides over 300 pages of information and solutions to problems caregivers face every day. If you are a caregiver or know someone who is caring for a loved one with dementia, don't miss this important opportunity.

The workshop will be held this Friday, September 13, 2019, at 585 North Main St. in Cedar City at 1:00 PM. To sign up please call Heather Cox, case manager, 435-865-7314 or email hcox@fivecounty.utah.gov amounting to $169,445, will be used to plan and host workshops for K-12 educators on the ancient Fremont culture of the American Southwest.

NEH GRANTS

"I speak for the many wonderful people involved in this project," said Kirkley. "We are thrilled and honored to be selected for this NEH Landmarks grant. We believe in giving young people experiences that promote understanding, stewardship, and enjoyment of our shared natural and cultural resources."

SUU and NEH first collaborated in April of 2019 at a grant writing workshop organized by Dr. Jean Boreen, dean of SUU's College of Humanities and Social Sciences. The grant writing workshop was organized in part by Jodi Graham, executive director of Utah Humanities, and Utah Representative Chris Stewart's office. Along with a presentation by Congressman Stewart, the workshop covered how best to prepare a proposal and move forward in writing a grant.

"We are very excited about the NEH Landmark grant awarded to Samantha Kirkley because of the wonderful opportunity it provides us to share all of the wonders of southern Utah with teachers from around the country," Dean Boreen said. "To give credit where it's due, Sam put in this proposal before the workshop, and landed it all on her own."

Along with individual applications, SUU's Sponsored Programs, Agreements, Research, and Contracts (SPARC) office, most commonly referred to as "the grants office," works to increase both the quality and quantity of grantsmanship at SUU.

"These awards speak to the enduring efforts of our dedicated team to elevate SUU to this level of national success," said Sylvia Bradshaw, SPARC director. "Karen Wilson, Suzette Bulloch, and Bill O'Neill are among the best of the best in research administration and I am thrilled to celebrate their integral part of this success."

In 2019, NEH awarded $29 million to 215 humanities projects across the United States. Other universities such as Yale, Stanford, Cambridge, and Cornell also received funding for various projects.

"SUU has a strong tradition of bringing the liberal arts to southern Utah and it is great to see it grow," said Congressman Stewart. "These humanities grants will help maintain the relationship between the university and the community. I am impressed by the hard work university faculty put into these grants."

To learn more, visit the Southern Utah Museum of Art website or the Utah Project Archaeology website. The workshops funded by this grant will be held in the summer of 2020.

Like Lucy did to Charlie Brown in the old Peanuts comic strips, the Dixie Flyers allowed the Cedar Reds small rays of hope it could overtake the team's high-powered offense.

Reggie Graff played Lucy, and the rest of the Flyers left the Reds feeling more like Charlie Brown with the football - and the scoreboard - pulled out from under them.

Graff was involved with nearly all of Dixie's touchdowns - five passing, two rushing - as the Flyers steadily pulled away and finished with a 59-38 victory over Cedar on Sept. 6. Dixie stayed perfect in Region 9 at 2-0 and has the best overall record at 3-1. Cedar fell to 0-2 and 1-3 with its third straight loss.

"That's a good football team," Cedar head coach Josh Bennett said of Dixie. "I thought our effort was good, but we struggled defensively. We had a great game plan, but they just out-executed us on the offensive end."

Graff went to work on the game's opening drive when he connected with Treyce Simmons on an 11-yard touchdown pass, but Cedar responded on its opening possession as Jaron Garrett threw the first of his two TDs to senior Tanner Esplin from 9 yards out.

But Graff was just getting started. The Dixie senior used his speed to out-run the Cedar defense for an 82-yard score late in the first quarter, and the Flyers wouldn't trail again.

The Reds came up with a goal-line stand and stopped Dixie at the 1 in the second quarter, but a penalty whistled in the end zone led to a safety, and the Flyers caught a big break on the next possession with every lineman's dream.

Graff completed a pass to Derek Kesterson inside the Cedar 15-yard line, but the hit from a defender popped the ball in the air and into the arms of Guy Ludlow, who caught it in stride and ran the remaining 10 yards for the score with two Cedar players draped over him.

The Garrett-to-Esplin connection struck quickly on a 15-yard touchdown with 3 minutes, 26 seconds left in the half, but the Flyers were undeterred. Graff found Simmons again for a 9-yard score with only 25 seconds left to restore the lead to 31-16 at the break.

Reds hold off Tigers rally

by Tom ZULEWSKI

IRON COUNTY TODAY

An early four-goal lead had disappeared for the Cedar Lady Reds soccer team. Needing a break, Kelsi Oldroyd provided the important play to help her team hold on for a key Region 9 victory.

Oldroyd beat the Hurricane defense to a long downfield kick and scored the go-ahead goal midway through the second half as Cedar held on for a 5-4 victory over the Hurricane Tigers on Sept. 3, its third straight overall as they improved to 3-1-0 in Region 9 play.

The junior forward credited communication with goalkeeper Denim Henkel for the play that helped the Lady Reds recover after the visiting Tigers (3-1-1) wiped out a 4-1 halftime deficit with a three-goal surge in the first six minutes.

"We talked about it at halftime. They had a huge line you could get past, and I just told her to send the ball high," Oldroyd said.

It was a sprint that Oldroyd won as she beat the Hurricane keeper in the 58th minute. Henkel produced several key saves the rest of the way, but Cedar got the biggest break when a Tigers shot clanged off the crossbar with 12 minutes left.

"To give up three goals that fast and then come back and play like that for the last 22 minutes was awesome," Cedar head coach Scott Kamachi said.

Logann Laws and Emily Schuh scored twice for Cedar as they built the 4-0 lead in the first half, but Hurricane got on the board with a goal from Lena Stevens in the 35th minute to cut the margin to three. Stevens would score again in the big early outburst for the Tigers and teammate Madelyn Hatch added two goals of her own to tie the score.

The Lady Reds had their second game of the week postponed due to bad weather. Cedar faced Desert Hills on Monday in a game that was too late for press deadline.

Falcons sweep week, start streak

by Tom ZULEWSKI

IRON COUNTY TODAY

For the first time in nearly two years, the Canyon View Falcons girls soccer team was able to win a Region 9 match. Three days later, they did it again.

Facing a determined Crimson Cliffs team looking for its first win as a program, Cassidy Cox helped the Falcons make history of its own with a goal in the final minute of overtime that gave them a 2-1 victory, its first since Sept. 7, 2017.

The win came in spite of a 50-minute delay for lightning near the end of regulation with the score tied at 1-1 after Alexandra Blanchard got the Mustangs even late in the second half. Addie Newman had the other goal for the Falcons in the first half.

It took an extra day due to a storm-related washout, but the Falcons were able to make it two wins in a row as they held on for a 3-2 win over the Dixie Flyers and improved to 2-3-0 in Region 9 play. All of the scoring came in the first half as Maddie Roberts scored twice and Newman had the other marker.

Over the final 40 minutes, the CV defense and keeper Aspen Bergener kept the ball out of the goal and left with the win.

CANYON VIEW'S BAEELI COX sends the ball back into action, helping her Falcons team earn a hard-fought victory.

"It's good to see the girls starting to win, but we still have a long way to go," Falcons head coach Steve Newman said. "We still have a lot to learn and clean up."

CV had several good scoring chances of their own in the second half, but several shots ended up rolling wide of the posts and out of the Dixie net.

"We're excited," Roberts added. "The second half was a little rough for us, but we kept working hard."

Canyon View was on the road for a game at Desert Hills on Tuesday that was too late for press deadline. They will host Cedar in the first rivalry meeting of the season Thursday in a 4 p.m. kickoff.

JR ROBINSON

THE MOMENT WHEN I REALIZED I'D WON $50,000 on 'Who Wants to be a Millionaire,' as host Chris Harrison looks on.

JACOB KEPLER-DISNEY/ABC HOME ENTERTAINMENT AND TV DISTRIBUTION

Time to say goodbye to a TV legend

I know I'm part of the sports section of this paper you happily read every week, but there was a sad development in the game-show universe that requires at least a small bit of tribute.

Who Wants to be a Millionaire aired for the final time Sept. 6, a culmination of a 17-year run in syndication to go with three seasons on ABC. As most of you who see me around town know, I was blessed beyond measure after winning $50,000 on the show 10 months ago.

Now I'm sad because it feels like this show — amazing as it was — will fade into a distant memory for some of us unless the show returns in a rebooted form.

I read a few Facebook posts after my show aired saying the money I won on Millionaire wasn't life-changing. Let's call that out right now for being completely speculative and just plain wrong.

For starters, I was able to use a portion of my money to get debt-free. Not having to worry about credit card bills and the interest paid on them is absolutely wonderful. That hasn't changed.

You've read about my baseball road trip in this space. That was made possible by my money won on TV. There's a real fence surrounding my front yard now, and that makes a difference. There's more work to come, but it's nice to be able to afford it.

And it's all because I answered 10 trivia questions correctly in front of a live studio audience.

The money is real and the joy hasn't stopped. A framed photocopy of my check from the show is on my wall as a daily reminder that I achieved something pretty amazing.

RANDOM Thoughts

by Tom ZULEWSKI

SPORTS WRITER

As for Millionaire's official replacement, KJZZ started showing a full hour of Family Feud in its old slot, and a new show gets started Sept. 16 that has a familiar face.

Meredith Vieira, who hosted Millionaire for 11 years, is back in the game-show universe as host of "25 Words or Less," a game that plays exactly like the title says. Get teams to say five words by using as few words as possible and win a top prize of $10,000.

From the samples I saw, the show looks like it will have fun times and a ton of laughs. 25 Words or Less will air daily at 4 p.m.

» Speaking of numbers, the Canyon View-Cedar football rivalry has one heading into this year's matchup that happens Friday at CV. It's all about four.

The Falcons have four wins in the rivalry with the Reds and have beaten them twice in the last four years, a 42-41 home win in 2015 and last year's 27-14 win at Cedar.

CV has yet to win two in a row, though. Something's going to give as both teams look for their first Region 9 win of 2019.

» And in case you missed it, the paper's web site — ironcountytoday.com — is undergoing some technical changes at the moment. It affects my ability to share the NFL games we get on TV each week, so starting today, please go to my Twitter address at the end of this column for all the knowledge of the Sunday games you'll get to watch.

Today's Kid Scoop page is to start you talking! Read each section and then discuss the questions.

Talk About Teasing

Why do kids tease? Some teasing starts out to be fun, but then it goes too far and turns negative and hurtful. Some kids tease because they feel bad about themselves, or they are sad or scared. Some kids tease to go along with the crowd. They think teasing other children will make them look Lydia is teasing Julie about her messy hair. Circle what Julie is thinking. Why did you choose the thought you selected?

Funny is not the same for everyone. One person may think getting teased about their hair is funny. Another person might find getting teased about their hair painful.

TALK ABOUT IT!

When and why have you teased someone in the past?

Standards Link: Health: Students know strategies for solving interpersonal conflicts without harming self or others.

TALK ABOUT IT!

What are some good ways to deal with being teased?

Too much teasing is bullying. When you see bullying, there are safe things you can do to make it stop. Below are a few things you can do to help a person that has been upset by teasing. Which would you try first? With a parent, discuss each of these helpful tips.

Talk to a parent, teacher, or another adult you trust. Adults need to know when bad things happen so they can help.

Be kind to the kid being bullied. Sit with them at lunch or on the bus or invite them to do something. Just hanging out with them will help.

Not saying anything could make it worse for everyone. The kid who is teasing will think it is ok to keep treating others that way.

Bullying is meant to hurt, intimidate, embarrass and threaten. It can happen online, through social media, through texting but also on the playground or after school. It's important to tell a trusted adult if you are being bullied or if you see another child being bullied.

TALK ABOUT IT!

When is teasing fun and when is it painful?

Look at the examples of teasing below. Cross out the examples that you think are hurtful. Circle the ones you think are funny. Not everyone will circle and cross out the same pictures. Why is that?

TALK ABOUT IT!

What do you think kids should do if they are embarrassed or hurt by teasing?
