Romney, Colleagues Introduce Bill to Mandate E-Verify, Eliminate Key Driver of Illegal Immigration

from Senator Mitt Romney

FOR IRON COUNTY TODAY

WASHINGTON—U.S. Senators Mitt Romney (R-UT), Tom Cotton (R-AR), Bill Cassidy, M.D. (R-LA), James Lankford (R-OK), and JD Vance (R-OH) today introduced the Mandatory E-Verify Act of 2024, legislation that would require all employers to use the federal electronic E-Verify system to confirm the employment eligibility of their workforce. The senators' bill comes on the heels of President Biden's recent attempt to restrict asylum claims, which does not affect the millions of illegal aliens who have already entered the United States since he took office and leaves in place the employment magnet that incentivizes illegal immigration.

"President Biden's last-ditch effort to limit asylum is too little, too late. Millions of illegal immigrants have already flooded into our country under his watch, and his executive order falls short in stopping widespread illegal employment," Senator Romney said.

"By requiring all employers to use E-Verify, our legislation would ensure that businesses only hire legal workers—eliminating a key driver of illegal immigration and protecting jobs for hardworking Americans."

"American workers today compete against millions of illegal immigrants for too few jobs—that's unfair. Ending the black market for illegal labor will open up jobs for Americans," Senator Cotton said. "Our legislation will take the necessary steps to make sure every potential employer is hiring only legal workers."

"E-verify protects employees and employers," said Dr. Cassidy. "It is an essential tool in controlling immigration and protecting Americans' jobs."

Background:

One of the leading causes of illegal immigration is the lack of adequate safeguards against unlawful employment in the U.S. job market. About 7.8 million illegal immigrants were in the U.S. labor force in 2021, and undocumented migrant encounters reported by U.S. Border Patrol have skyrocketed to more than 9.6 million since then. According to Rasmussen Reports, 68% of all likely voters believe the government should mandate employers to use E-Verify to help ensure they hire only legal workers for U.S. jobs.

The Mandatory E-Verify Act of 2024 would:

1. Mandate E-Verify for all employers, phasing in implementation over 18 months to allow small businesses to comply;

Utah GOP Gubernatorial Primary Debate

from Iron County Today Staff

FOR IRON COUNTY TODAY

The Utah Republican gubernatorial primary debate between candidates Spencer Cox and Phil Lyman was held on June 11th, 2024 at University of Utah's campus.

On housing affordability, Cox touted recently passed legislation to incentivize building 35,000 starter homes under $300,000, claiming it was the most comprehensive housing reform in the United States. Lyman advocated relying more on free market principles rather than government intervention, suggesting making more public land available for housing development.

Regarding water resources, Cox highlighted changing over 180 years of water law to protect agriculture while freeing up water for residential use through optimization. Lyman proposed improving forest management and infrastructure to harness more of Utah's ample water sources rather than buying out farmers' water rights.

The candidates differed on abortion laws post-Dobbs, with Cox expressing pride in Utah's laws protecting fetal life after the case returned regulation to the states. Lyman credited Utah's legislation to citizens appealing to legislators and Heaven to stop the, "slaughter of innocent children."

On public lands, Cox decried the Biden administration's environmental extremism restricting uses like camping, hiking, and hunting. Lyman warned against excessive litigation, instead advocating Utah assert jurisdiction over roads crossing federal land.

Cox touted hosting the 2034 Olympics at no taxpayer cost through corporate sponsorships, calling it an incredible opportunity after the financially successful 2002 Games. Lyman questioned whether Utahns truly wanted to host again given the infrastructure burden.

The candidates held opposing views on using aggressive rhetoric, with Cox preferring dignified conduct representing all Utahns. Lyman endorsed frank speech standing up to perceived federal overreach "weaponizing" agencies against the state.

Cox praised citizen ballot initiatives if implemented properly post-passage, while Lyman sought to make the initiative process more accessible to citizens to increase legislative responsiveness.

On economic development incentives, Cox welcomed companies avoiding the Wasatch Front through revised incentives focused on rural Utah. Lyman opposed recruited companies worsening urbanization issues.

The candidates disagreed on government intervention with Cox defending a temporary delay closing a coal plant given electricity demands and Lyman denouncing action against a quasi-public-private operation. However, both rejected the premise of the state forcing a private company to remain open.

In closing statements, Lyman advocated for empowering local governance over federal encroachment and called for a strong governor upholding Utah's republican form of government. Cox celebrated Utah's status as America's top state according to comprehensive rankings, promoting its industrious and community-oriented values as a model for the nation.

MUNICIPAL SERVICES FUND TAX

by Patti Truax

FOR IRON COUNTY TODAY

In 2008 the Municipal Services Fund was added to the property taxes of only the unincorporated homeowners properties. The tax rate for the Municipal Services is 0.001849, while the tax rate for County General Fund (which all Iron County residents pay taxes into) is 0.000916. This Municipal Services tax "was to pay for services such as fire protection, law enforcement, and some road maintenance, including snow removal", according to Reed Erickson, all services that the unincorporated residents rarely use. Before 2008 the unincorporated property owners paid for these services in the General Fund tax. Now incorporated property owners pay nothing for the services taxed in the Municipal Services Fund.

Below, I've listed the services that

Setting the Slaves Free Brings Celebration

PART 9

by Edy Meredith

FOR IRON COUNTY TODAY

It was a lot of work to set the slaves free originally in the United States. During the Civil War (1861-1865) there were an estimated 1.5 million casualties which were the result of fighting as well as non-combat related disease including soldiers and civilians killed, wounded, captured, and missing. More Americans died during the Civil War than during the combined totals of all other wars fought by American soldiers.

During Abraham Lincoln's 2nd Inaugural Address, he stated: "Fondly do we hope, fervently do we pray, that this mighty scourge of war may speedily pass away. Yet, if God wills that it continues until all the wealth piled by the bondsman's 250 years of unrequited toil shall be sunk, and until every drop of blood drawn with the lash shall be paid by another drawn with the swords, ... so still it must be said 'the judgments of the Lord are true and righteous altogether.'" (Psalm 19:9-13)

While the Emancipation Proclamation went into effect on January 1, 1863, its full impact was not felt until June 19, 1865, more than 2 years later after Major General Gordon Granger reached Galveston, Texas, in the most remote part of the rebellious U.S. Southern states of the Confederacy. The date of June 19 every year subsequently has been celebrated as the holiday of Juneteenth in many U.S. states when it was finally made a federal holiday recently in 2021. Before that federal declaration about half of the U.S. states (including Utah in 2016) had made Juneteenth state holidays.

Yes, human slavery continues to be a scourge on human civilization with the number of people currently in bondage and enslaved engulfing the numbers in slavery when slavery was legal. Please celebrate the liberation of American slaves held in bondage on June 19th this year. Southern Utah University (SUU) is holding events including a special exhibit at the Southern Utah Museum of Art (10 am to 8 pm) titled "I'm Walkin' for My Freedom" which features 40 photographs of the Selma to Montgomery March that led to the Voting Rights Act of 1965, prompting visitors to consider our past, present, and future.

The exhibit was organized by Matt Herron and the Center for Documentary Expression and Art. In Cedar City, City Hall will be closed in observance of the Juneteenth holiday.

While Juneteenth was made a federal holiday in 2021, it has been an annual commemoration of the end of slavery in the United States and has been celebrated by African Americans since the late 1800's. Early celebrations involved prayer and family gatherings as former slaves reconnected with their lost families. In some cities today, like Atlanta and Washington, larger events are held. "Proclaim Liberty throughout all the Land unto All the Inhabitants Thereof" is inscribed on the Liberty Bell from Leviticus 25:10 in the Bible. Let's continue this wonderful work. Please go to the following website for the Antislavery Directory to get in touch and join with organizations fighting against modern-day slavery and human trafficking: endslaverynow.org/connect?country=1405#filter. It provides the organizations name, forms of slavery, state, and location of their anti-slavery activities.

are included in the General Fund and the Municipal Services Fund. I believe that all of the services listed in the Municipal Services Fund should be included in the General Fund and all homeowners in Iron County should be taxed for them equally. If you agree, then let the county commissioners know about how inequitable the Municipal Services tax is and that you want it eliminated. In the future, we should only vote for those county commissioners who will agree to end taxing property owners for these unjust taxes. We've been taken advantage of for 16 years - that's too long.

Cedar City Man Given Maximum Sentence for Distribution of Methamphetamine

by Tracie Sullivan

FOR IRON COUNTY TODAY

CA 5th District Court Judge sentenced a local man Tuesday to a maximum of 15 years in the Utah State Prison after prosecutors argued that his prior criminal record warranted a severe punishment.

Judge Jeffrey C. Wilcox sentenced Timothy Robert Williams, 46, to one to 15 years in the Utah State Prison following a plea deal in which the defendant admitted to charges of drug distribution and violation of a protective order.

Williams, who was arrested on March 24, 2024, at the I-15 Northbound Kanarrville rest stop, was originally facing five charges.

These included distributing a controlled substance, possession of drug paraphernalia, violation of a protective order, operating a vehicle without a license or registration, and operating a vehicle without insurance.

According to court records, the arresting officer reported that during the traffic stop, Williams was found to be in violation of a protective order. Upon searching his vehicle, officers discovered approximately two pounds of methamphetamine and drug paraphernalia. Williams initially claimed the substance was for personal use but was charged with intent to distribute due to the large quantity.

During the sentencing, Iron County Prosecutor Shane Klenk highlighted Williams' extensive criminal history pointing to the presentence investigation that scored the defendant on the highest level of the matrix.

"The recommendation by APP is imprisonment and the state concurs," Klenk said. "The defendant's matrix score puts him on the highest level of the sentencing matrix, making him presumptive for prison. That is exceptionally difficult to achieve, but he has one of the most lengthy criminal histories I have ever seen."

Klenk detailed Williams' previous convictions, which include 12 felonies ranging from domestic violence assault to drug distribution and felony firearm crimes.

"Law enforcement only found the defendant's two pounds of meth because he was arrested for violating a protective order," Klenk said. "The defendant claims he was purchasing in bulk for himself to last the year. This simply is not credible... It's roughly $30,000 worth of product and is inconsistent with personal use. He especially does not get the benefit of the doubt given his distribution convictions both in 2022 and 2018. Prison is warranted, the defendant has earned it, and it's appropriate."

Utah to Execute Death Row Inmate Taberon Honie Amidst Controversy Over New Lethal Injection Protocol

by Tracie Sullivan

FOR IRON COUNTY TODAY

After 25 years on death row, 48-year-old Taberon Honie is scheduled for execution on August 8, following a recent ruling by 5th District Judge Jeffrey C. Wilcox.

After more than an hour of intense legal arguments, Wilcox's decision marks the end of a long series of appeals and legal battles for Honie. Presiding over the hearing in the Cedar City courtroom, Wilcox ultimately sided with prosecutors, concluding that there were no legal grounds to continue the stay of execution.

"The law requires me to sign both the warrant of execution and an order of delivery of the warrant of execution," Wilcox said, thus setting the stage for Utah's first execution in over a decade.

Details of the Case

Honie was sentenced to death in 1999 for the brutal murder of Claudia Benn, a substance abuse counselor and mother of his ex-girlfriend.

The crime occurred on July 9, 1998, when Honie forcibly entered Benn's Cedar City home, where she was watching her grandchildren, and violently attacked her. Police found Honie covered in blood, confessing to the murder upon their arrival.

Despite multiple appeals on various grounds, including ineffective defense and claims of unconstitutional execution methods, Honie's conviction and death sentence have been upheld.

The case was initially tried by then Iron County Attorney Scott Burns, who appeared in court Monday to hear the judge's ruling. Several attempts to contact Burns for comment went unanswered.

Concerns Over New Lethal Injection Protocol

Honie's defense attorney, Eric Zuckerman, has since announced plans to appeal the ruling, citing significant concerns about the state's newly announced lethal injection protocol.

The Utah Department of Corrections recently decided to use a drug combination of ketamine, fentanyl, and potassium chloride, a mix that has not been used before in executions. This has raised alarms among human rights advocates, who fear that the experimental nature of the protocol could lead to inhumane outcomes.

Zuckerman argues that the state has not provided sufficient information about the new drug protocol, including exact dosages and administration procedures, which he claims is unprecedented and unconstitutional.

He has called for a thorough judicial review before any execution proceeds, emphasizing that Honie's right to an informed choice about his method of execution has been compromised.

Parks director Anthony Pearson reported water main leaks and valve issues at city parks due to the heat wave, which his staff was addressing. Recreation manager Ken Nelson announced that the Aquatic Center would maintain normal hours on the upcoming Monday holiday due to swimming lessons and programs.

The council considered appointments to city boards and committees, with several citizens introducing themselves.

A public hearing was held on modifying the city ordinance for off-premises advertising signs. A local businessman proposed remodeling and replacing damaged signs, and converting them to digital within guidelines. Concerns about setting a precedent and managing billboard proliferation led the council to table the item for further revision.

The council discussed a road dedication and cul-de-sac near 102 East Park View Street for a private residence. They considered granting an easement instead of a public cul-de-sac to avoid city maintenance.

A public hearing was held for a conditional use permit for a business office at a residential treatment facility at 218 South 2100 West. The permit was recommended for approval with conditions like screening parking areas.

The council also held public hearings on proposed compensation increases for "executive municipal officers," the final 2024-2025 fiscal year budget, and revisions to the current 2023-2024 budget. Police Chief Darren Adams requested reinstating a part-time police support position that was previously cut.

The council discussed issues related to the police department. Police Chief Darren Adams highlighted the increasing workload and decreasing staff. The department is down six officers (15%) in the patrol division, with an average experience level of just under three years.

Chief Adams proposed reducing police response to non-urgent, non-criminal calls, such as having citizens file online reports for past crimes without suspects or evidence. The council supported this prioritization but emphasized clear messaging to ensure the public understands that officers remain focused on real crimes and public safety. They also discussed increasing officer compensation.

The meeting also covered the redevelopment agency (RDA) budget, which is depleted after funding projects like Main Street lighting. There was debate over allocating $15,000 from the RDA for a part-time downtown coordinator previously funded by grants. Some suggested businesses should contribute, while others saw value in continuing the role temporarily. A compromise was reached to provide $10,000 from the RDA for one more year while encouraging businesses to fund the position.

Parowan City Council

from Jennelle Zajac

FOR IRON COUNTY TODAY

Every meeting begins with the opportunity for public comment; today, two residents provided comments. The first resident presented a complaint about a neighbor that is operating a commercial cabinet-making operation out of a residential garage, causing excessive noise and environmental hazards in a residential area. The noise and hazards are viewed as nuisances by the complainant. She requested that Parowan City provide code enforcement on this issue and, among other things, get the individual to cease commercial shop operations in a residential area. The second citizen speaking requested that the City provide guidance/enforcement for the July 4th fireworks ordinance that allows residents to light fireworks at Lion's Park on July 4th. This citizen stated that fireworks have previously drifted into her yard and she has observed small children that were allowed to light fireworks, causing hazards for others due to mishandling. She requested that police be assigned to monitor the activity.

Public Hearing on Municipal Statutory Officer's Compensation

Dan Jessen, Parowan's City Manager, presented a list of several city employees and their salaries. The purpose was to meet the requirements of Utah Municipal Code 10-3-818(2), a new state requirement for public reporting of Municipal Statutory Officer's Compensation. The public in attendance had no comments.

Action Meeting

PHS Flag Retirement Repository

Toni Robison of Parowan High School has acquired an old postal mailbox to be repurposed for the collection of US Flags in need of retirement. The box will be located at the high school in the Commons under the shade structure and will be visible from Main Street. The flag retirement ceremony held in November 2023 with PHS government and local Veterans was such a moving patriotic and educational experience for all who participated, PHS wishes to make the event an annual tradition. Students will collect and care for flags until each annual retirement ceremony, which will be held around Veteran's Day each year. The Council voted to accept the location proposed for this item and to assist with getting the word out to residents.

FY 2024-25 Budget and Certified Tax Rate

City Manager Dan Jessen presented the FY 2024-25 budget and stated that, according to the Auditor's Certified Tax Rate of $.002241, Parowan City will collect approximately $853k from the property tax to be collected this November. The Council approved this resolution.

AJM Annexation Petition Request

Dallas Buckner of Go Civil Engineering represented AJM Investments who has purchased acreage east of Parowan City. AJM has submitted a Petition for Annexation to Parowan City. Annexation of this property would move the property which is currently in the county to Parowan City. This request is the first step in the annexation process, which allows the Council to consider the request and gather information. Each Council member stated their desire to get more information about the proposed project and requested that informational meetings be held for Parowan citizens. The Council approved the petition; Councilman Burton dissented. It should be noted that granting this petition does not approve the annexation but opens the door to information gathering and negotiations. In addition, Iron County has approved the annexation of this property into Parowan City.

Employee Retirement Insurance Benefit Discussion and Vote

Recent review of Parowan City Employee policies prompted discussion of a retirement benefit that pays for health insurance coverage for employee and spouse for five years after retirement. The Council voted to discontinue this benefit for employees hired after June 13, 2014.

600 West Seasonal Road Closure and Swing Gates

During high run off periods, this road is closed to thru traffic and often closed and locked out via swing gates. Some residents have asked for the gates to be removed; some have even cut off the padlocks. Other residents want the gates to be retained, and the road closed when water is present, as stated by posted signs. Mr. Jessen stated that it is time-consuming to constantly monitor water levels and close and open the gate, asking the Council to consider removal of the gates. The Council will take action on this item at the next meeting.

Highlights from Council and Staff Reports

- The Pickle ball court site has been graded and an RFP for construction will go out soon.
- Jacobs Engineering Group has been selected to design the Main Street bridge replacement. It is anticipated that construction will begin in winter of 2025 (not this winter but NEXT winter).
- Maverik annexation was temporarily stalled but is proceeding; this issue will come to the City Council again in July.
- The Parowan City Library has resumed regular hours.
- Activities in support of the Parowan Bike Park have continued. Elementary school student Tucker Johnson won a bike donated by Parowan Bike shop when he submitted the winning name for the bike park – Evil Water Bike Park. Construction activities to begin soon near Valentine Peak Sports Complex!

Residents are encouraged to attend city Council Meetings on the second and fourth Thursday of each month at 6:00 p.m. at the Parowan City Council Chambers. Alternatively, the meetings can be viewed at <https://www.youtube.com/@parowancity2030>

IRON COUNTY GOVERNMENT RECAPS

Iron County Commission Meeting

from Iron County Today Staff

FOR IRON COUNTY TODAY

A key agenda item was a proposed amendment to the County Code regarding designated livestock trails. The County Planner explained that the amendment aimed to formalize these trails and depict them on an official map. Concerns from the Planning Commission meeting included the scope of the new map compared to the old one and the broad language regarding historically used trails becoming public rights-of-way.

The county's GIS Coordinator presented the updated livestock trails map, developed with input from local livestock stakeholders. A Commission representative clarified that the ordinance's broad language sought to protect existing but unofficial trails.

During the public hearing, local ranchers, farmers, and representatives strongly supported officially designating livestock trails to maintain ranching operations, particularly during winter conditions. They expressed concerns about urban expansion, developments neglecting trail accommodation, and misuse by off-road vehicles and impatient motorists.

No action was taken, and it was postponed for further review.

The meeting continued with a public hearing on issuance of sales tax revenue bonds.

The discussion focused on issuing up to $95 million in sales tax revenue bonds to fund public infrastructure projects in 2024. Marcus Keller from Cru and Associates, the county's municipal advisor, explained that the county chose an excise tax approach based on public feedback after an extensive review process.

The bonds will finance a new public safety facility and sheriff complex on county-owned land near Horse Alley, Airport Road, and the railroad tracks, chosen to minimize residential impact.

The next item was to discuss and approve a zone change from Agriculture 20 acres (A20) to Light Industrial (LI) for 13.8 acres at 500 East SR-56 in Burl.

Erikson presented the item, noting that the Planning Commission recommended approval. The property, located south of Highway 56 near Burl Junction, is surrounded by residential, commercial, and agricultural areas.

Rezoning to Light Industrial would allow for light manufacturing, assembly, and screened outdoor storage. The property has no structures, minimal services, and will use septic for sewer needs and a new well for water.

Concerns about business operations and sewer capacity were addressed, confirming the property falls under unincorporated area septic regulations.

The Commission approved it unanimously.

The next agenda item was an amendment to the county code, targeting Section 17.36.184.10 (Definitions) and Chapter 16.40 (Landscaping Standards). It aims to promote water conservation and qualify residents for the state's Turf Buyback Program.

Reed explained the Planning Commission's recommendation for approval. The amendment includes:

Requiring park strips to be at least 8 feet wide.

Mandating lawn areas to be a minimum of 8 feet wide.

Limiting front and side yard grass, sod, or turf coverage to 50%, with no restrictions on backyards.

New commercial, industrial, and multifamily landscaping is capped at 20% grass or turf, excluding defined active recreation areas.

Following a brief public hearing without comments, the Commission unanimously approved the amendment (Ordinance 2024-4254 D4), effective immediately upon publication.

The meeting continued with public comments. A representative from Rep. Celeste Maloy's office provided updates. Members from the Cedar City Daughters of Utah Pioneers Museum spoke about their efforts to digitize and make accessible 500 pioneer family histories they have on file. The Commission then approved single event alcohol permits for Roberto Favella's ranch on June 29 and July 20.

A representative from Cedar City Hospital provided the annual update on maintaining their non-profit status. He highlighted facility upgrades, the new emergency response app, and partnership with the Health Department on a community health needs.

Representatives from Vision Iron County presented on their initiative, which hired a policy institute to survey the community and identify 10 focus areas: education, economic development, healthcare, community character, arts/entertainment, tourism, infrastructure, land use/housing, parks/recreation, technology and transportation.

Despite these concerns, the UDC has stated it will proceed with the planned drug combination, citing recommendations from medical professionals.

Iron County Attorney Chad Dotson however, said it is unlikely that the execution will be stopped on that basis.

“He has exhausted all of his appeals,” Dotson said. “Utah law states he can appeal the case for several different reasons, which he has done. But the state has the right to change the prescription protocol and I don't think that would give him grounds to appeal the ruling.”

Execution Logistics

The execution is planned to take place at the Utah State Correctional Facility in Salt Lake City. This is the first time an execution has been held in the new facility that was opened in 2022.

measuring 24 feet by 38 feet and is fitted with curtains to cover the windows in the adjacent witness rooms. The windows are complete with reflective glass to both protect the identities of the witnesses.

Honie may request up to five individuals to witness the execution, including religious representatives, friends, and family. However, the Utah Department of Corrections (UDC) has discretion whether to grant the request.

The condemned will be contacted by officials for instructions on how to dispose of his personal property and any funds remaining in his inmate account. Organ donation is not an option for condemned inmates.

According to a press release issued by the UDC there will also be staging locations for demonstrators outside the prison, whether in favor of or against capital punishment.

Honie will have the opportunity to choose his last meal, select the witnesses to his execution, and make a final statement.

Honie's execution is the first in Utah since 2010 when Ronnie Lee Gardner became the third person to be executed by firing squad since the 1970s.

OFFICIAL ENDORSEMENT

The Iron County Republican Party proudly endorses Phil Lyman for governor. As the winner of the Utah Republican State Convention, with 67.54% support from locally elected State Delegates, we recognize Phil as the Republican Party Nominee, according to both our County and State Party Bylaws.

During his time in the Utah House of Representatives and prior, Phil has consistently demonstrated his commitment to the citizens of Utah. Phil's opposition to doubling the grocery tax during a time of rising inflation exemplifies his understanding of the economic pressures facing Utah citizens. Furthermore, his advocacy for secure elections reinforces the foundation of our Republic.

His strong stance against Federal overreach on Utah land during the Obama era, the prosecution he faced for his advocacy, and his official pardon by President Trump all demonstrate his commitment to fighting for Utah's sovereignty.

We highly value Phil's refusal to accept money from special interest groups that would undermine Utah's traditional family values.

We believe Phil Lyman is the leader we need to ensure a prosperous and principled future. We encourage Utah Citizens and county Republican Parties to join us in supporting his candidacy for Governor.

The Greenshow: 10 Fun Facts

from Utah Shakespeare Festival

FOR IRON COUNTY TODAY

From the early years of the Festival, The Greenshow has always been an audience (and performer) favorite. First developed by the late Barbara Adams over sixty years ago, this free 30-minute family-friendly entertainment before the evening plays happens every Monday through Saturday at 7:10 p.m. beginning June 17 through September 7.

This season, returning director Britannia Howe has created three distinct and exciting themes which rotate in correspondence with the evening shows in the outdoor Engelstad Shakespeare Theatre: Royals Night, Folk Festival Night, and Commedia Night. In addition, the Paiute Indian Tribe of Utah returns as part of The Greenshow and will perform four special evenings throughout the season.

"I love the spirit of The Greenshow," says Howe. "It invites audiences into our space to play. It is vital for our world-building, to create a joyful experience with our guests."

Whether you are a first-comer to The Greenshow, or have attended for over sixty years, here are some fun things to know about this Festival staple held on the Ashton Family Greenshow Commons.

01 Howe is returning for her fifth year as writer and director of The Greenshow, having also helmed it in 2018, 2019, 2021, and 2023. She has created 14 Greenshows for the Festival so far and is always looking for new stories, themes, and music, while striving to keep the nostalgia of the traditional Greenshow.

02 Royals Night, which plays on the same night as Henry VIII, is inspired by the lineage of King Henry VIII with songs from English, Irish, and Scottish folk traditions. Special appearances include Queen Elizabeth I; Mary, Queen of Scots; and a couple members of a favorite Loch Ness family.

03 Folk Night, which plays the same night as The Winter's Tale, draws on those Shakespearean characters who live in the Bohemian wilderness. With themes of a summertime arts festival, there will be folk songs, lively stories, and artistic characters to enchant the audience.

04 Commedia Night, which precedes performances of The Taming of the Shrew, is inspired by Italy and features stock characters from Commedia dell'Arte. There will be lots of fun tricks, jokes, and plenty of puns.

05 Don't miss our friends from the Paiute Indian Tribe of Utah who will take the stage on July 8 and 23, and August 7 and 29 for their very own Greenshow performances, including traditional drumming, dances, music, and regalia.

Many of the props used in The Greenshows have an important feel of nostalgia because they have been used in past seasons. One to look out for on Royals Night is the Mama Nessie puppet which was first used in The Greenshow and The Royal Feast over 25 years ago and requires two people to manipulate. Also, Mama Nessie appears during an original song composed by Festival Music Director Brandon Grayson with lyrics by Grayson and Howe. (BONUS FUN FACT: Grayson has either arranged, music directed, produced, or composed 100 songs exactly for The Greenshow in the past five years!)

07

All The Greenshow performers this season are alumni or current students of Southern Utah University. (Go T-Birds!)

08

This is Trey Plutnicki's first year as a choreographer for the Festival and The Greenshow. He was a featured performer in The Greenshow in 2019 and 2021. Some may recognize him from the reality television show Squid Game: The Challenge.

09

When writing The Greenshow, Howe says she tries to include references to the history of the Festival. For example, one of the songs this season references the large sycamore trees that shade The Greenshow stage.

This is the first time The Greenshow costumes have been co-designed by longtime Festival employees Diana Girtain and Jeff Lieder. They were especially excited about designing and crafting the gowns for the two queens on Royals Night. "I have wanted to have Queen Elizabeth appear on The Greenshow stage for years," says Howe. "This year I thought it was the right opportunity because of the connection to Henry VIII, as she was his and Anne Boleyn's daughter." Girtain and Lieder designed her and Mary, Queen of Scots' dresses in such a way that the actors could still dance and move about with ease.

The Greenshow is a perfect way for families and patrons of all ages to enjoy the Festival Experience. Don't forget to book your tickets to the mainstage productions of Henry VIII, The Winter's Tale, The Taming of the Shrew, Much Ado About Nothing, The 39 Steps, Silent Sky, and The Mountaintop. Mom's Review: Little House On The Prairie

CORNER(ED)

by Weslie Stratton

CONTRIBUTOR

Summer in Utah always feels like the perfect time to reflect on the pioneer ancestors who settled this state. This time last year my kids and I decided to read about a popular pioneer girl and her family as we prepared to celebrate Pioneer Day in July.

Just last month we finished the last page of the last book in The Little House On The Prairie series, and we all felt like crying because the adventure was over!

The last year of reading has brought my family closer together as we anticipated learning about the highs and lows of the Ingalls family before bed every night. My kids have begged me to read just one more chapter, and I have lost all track of time on more than one occasion as I read aloud for over an hour, sucked into this amazing pioneer masterpiece.

While my youngest two, ages two and four, benefitted from the cozy snuggle time and dozed off to the sound of my reading more often than not, my older two, ages six and eight, were completely engrossed in every detail of the stories we read. They were in awe of what Laura and her sisters endured, how they entertained themselves, what they gave and received for Christmas and how willing they were to give what little they had to anyone in need.

These books drove home principles of hard work, honesty, integrity, grit and much more. They provided an opportunity for our family to discuss how we would conduct ourselves if we faced similar situations.

My husband and I found ourselves asking the kids questions like, "How would you feel if you woke up Christmas morning to nothing but a pair of mittens and a stick of candy in your stocking?". This led to a discussion on how important it is to be grateful for the things that we have.

We were able to talk about how valuable it is to make the most of every situation, no matter how gloomy it may seem, and how working together to accomplish a goal makes a task easier and more enjoyable.

Over the last 12 months we have bonded over the trials, hardships, successes and romance described on the pages written by Laura Ingalls Wilder.

MOM'S REVIEW

When we finally finished the books, we began watching the TV series from the very beginning and my kids learned yet another valuable lesson: the book is always better than the show! While these episodes are a wholesome way to entertain the family, we have been disappointed by how loosely they follow the books.

I have been surprised and pleased each time my kids point out a major difference or recognize that a storyline in the show never even happened in the book! This proves just how closely they listened to and loved the words they heard me read.

I fully anticipate rereading the entire series three or four years from now when my younger kids are old enough to understand, and I have no doubt their siblings will want in on round two!

If you're looking for a way to educate your children on the lifestyle of the pioneers who persevered to settle the United States, as well as teach them valuable life lessons and provide quality family time along the way, I highly recommend this series.

THE FOUNDING OF IRON COUNTY - PART 2

The Pioneer Trek to Parowan

by Jay M. Jones

FOR IRON COUNTY TODAY

Parley P. Pratt led an expedition to what became Southern Utah during the winter of 1849 and 1850 which verified the location of rich iron ore deposits and identified nearby locations to establish settlements.

Upon his return to Salt Lake City, Pratt issued a detailed report to the Legislature. Based on Pratt's report, plans began immediately to establish settlements in the south. George A. Smith was appointed to lead the effort and given authority by the legislature to establish local governments for the new communities in Iron County.

The Deseret News advertised on 27 July 1850 for volunteers to establish an iron foundry and supporting farms and mills in the Little Salt Lake region. Additional calls were issued and emphasis placed on the importance of the effort. Plans were made to make the move after fall harvest and to be on location in time for spring planting. The settlers needed to be well supplied with food and materials to enable them to quickly become self-sufficient.

Instructions were issued for the new colonists to assemble with their wagons, teams and supplies at Fort Utah (Provo) in the first two weeks of December 1850. With approximately 100 wagons outfitted for the journey, Anson Call was appointed captain of the first 50 and Simon Baker captain of the second 50.

Leaders were also selected for subgroups of 10 wagons each. Aaron Cherry, Elijah Sheets, Elijah Newman, William Dame and Orson Adams were each captains of ten reporting to Anson Call. The captains of ten in Simon Baker's group were William Mitchell, Tarlton Lewis, John Barnard, Andrew Love and Samuel Bringham.

Joseph Horne, who traveled the route north with the Pratt expedition the previous year, was the pilot for the wagon train.

Several accounts have been written about the journey, all based on three primary sources who made the trek: George A. Smith (leader of the mission), John D. Lee (camp scribe), and Henry Lunt (private clerk for Smith).

In a Pioneer Magazine article about the trek, Janet Seegmiller relates: "As the Iron County-bound settlers gathered at Provo's fort . . . there were probably 30 women, 18 children under age 14, and 119 'men' — which included boys over 14. When George A. Smith addressed the camp, he called them the 'Iron County Mission,' he said, because 'we were as much on a mission as though we were sent to Preach the Gospel.'"

Seegmiller accounts for the uncertainty of the exact numbers of pioneers in the original trek in her book, "A History of Iron County: Community Above Self":

"Iron Mission membership lists include: a 'called list,' a 'traveling roster,' an 'arrived roster,' and a 'census list' — each different from the others. The 'called list' published in the Deseret News on 16 November 1850 included the names of 119 men and a request for additional volunteers. Some who were called did not make the trip and others not called took their places." Several women and children, although not initially called, joined their husbands and fathers.

The census list was taken in May following the arrival of another group of pioneers, so it included many who did not travel with the first group.

Seegmiller continues: "Divided into two companies, the settlers traveled from December 16 to mid-January, enduring bitterly cold winter weather. Apparently most of the settlers rode in the 101 wagons instead of walking; many of the wagons were fitted with small stoves so that those inside could travel in some comfort, so long as they could find fuel to keep the fires going. Smith said that the wagons looked like steamboats crossing the snow-covered valleys, with smoke curling upward from pipes that poked out of wagon tops."

Some of the party intended to settle permanently in Iron County. Some were on short-term missions to help the new communities get established.

Morris A. Shirts and Kathryn H. Shirts, in the book "A Trial Furnace: Southern Utah's Iron Mission," give a detailed day-by-day account of the journey, along with identifying the 26 camp sites from Provo to Parowan.

Reaching the Sevier River on Christmas Eve, temperatures dropped to below zero on Christmas morning. Crossing the river without mishap took two days. On the morning of 26 December it was found that three animals turned loose to graze were missing, including two oxen belonging to George A. Smith.

Following tracks through the snow, the missing animals were located, one mortally wounded with arrows. Two natives were also found, a father and his 12-year-old son, nearly naked and shivering in the cold.

As settlement for the dead ox, the boy was taken and adopted by William Empey, to be fed and clothed and treated as a member of the family. The father would have visiting rights as long as he did not persist in stealing animals. He was given clothing and told he could have the dead ox to eat.

Temple Square Renovation Update: June 2024

Seismically Designed Concrete Foundations move Closer to Completion

From The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saint Newsroom

FOR IRON COUNTY TODAY

Construction work continues on the historic Salt Lake Temple of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. In late March and early April, the first component of the new seismically designed concrete foundation was poured. The new foundation, which includes very large transfer girders, or beams, will carry the massive weight of the Temple from its existing stone foundation through the transfer girders to the new footings upon which the base isolators rest.

Post-tensioned cables, totaling 263 miles (423 kilometers), are also being run through the foundation. Post-tensioned cables are used to transfer the massive weight of the Temple from its existing foundation to the base isolators, which will move five feet in any direction (1.5 meters) in a severe seismic event.

The seismically designed concrete foundation is expected to be completed later this summer.

Since the beginning of 2024, several areas on Temple Square have reopened to the public. Those areas include the section north of the Tabernacle, the Main Street Plaza, and the plaza south of the Church Office Building, which includes the new flag display. The Main Street Plaza and Conference Center offer viewpoints to observe construction progress.

A section of the perimeter wall was removed along North Temple Street, which will give the Salt Lake Temple a more welcoming presence. Two new entry buildings north of the Temple will also allow for a more open view of the sacred structure.

Work is also moving forward on the pavilions located directly south of the temple. Once completed, the pavilions will help visitors better understand the purpose of temples and the peace and spiritual power available to all who worship in the house of the Lord.

IRON COUNTY CHILDREN'S JUSTICE CENTER- MISSION COMPLETE

by May Hunter

FOR IRON COUNTY TODAY

The Iron County Children's Justice Center (ICCCJ) is thrilled to share some exciting news with our community: We are eagerly anticipating the completion and move to our new facility scheduled for the end of June or first part of July. This move marks a significant milestone in our mission to provide a safe, supportive environment for children and families during critical times.

The ICCJC plays a vital role in our community by offering a centralized, compassionate approach to handling allegations of child abuse. Our facility allows highly skilled forensic interviewers to conduct and preserve child interviews through audio and visual recordings facilitating the collaborative multi-disciplinary team approach. This practice reduces the need for multiple interviews by various child protection and criminal justice agencies, minimizing the trauma experienced by the children involved.

The new facility located at 1622 E. 5250 N. in Enoch, Utah, is designed to look and feel like a home, ensuring that children and their families feel secure and comfortable during the investigative process of alleged child physical or sexual abuse and maltreatment. To celebrate this momentous occasion, we will be hosting a grand opening and ribbon-cutting ceremony. While the exact date will be announced as we get closer, we are already looking forward to welcoming the community to see our new space and learn about our work.

In conjunction with our upcoming move, we are excited to announce our annual fundraiser, the 5K Fun Run/walk, scheduled for June 22nd at 8 A.M.

This year's event will be held at our new location, giving participants a first look at our new facility. We invite everyone in the community to join us for a morning of fun, fitness, and support for a worthy cause. You can sign up for the event at raceentry.com. All proceeds from the run will go towards finishing and furnishing our new center, ensuring we have everything needed to continue providing top-notch care and support.

We are immensely grateful for the support of our community and look forward to seeing everyone at the 5K Fun Run/Walk. Your participation and contributions are invaluable as we strive to complete and equip our new facility, further enhancing our ability to serve, protect, and assist the children of Iron County in healing from abuse.

Join us on June 22, and stay tuned for more details about our grand opening. Together, we can make a difference in the lives of countless children and families. Visit our website ironcounty.net/departmenta/cjc/about-us or call 435-867-4275.

Thank you for your continued support!

members of the Iron Mission, recorded his memory of the route through Beaver Valley and over the mountains into Iron County:

"We came through 18 inches of snow down [Wildcat Canyon] and over ridges until we came into Beaver Valley, and crossed over the Beaver [River] several miles below where the city of Beaver now stands, and climbed the mountain through a canyon west of the present road and came down to what is called buckhorn Springs."

Shirts also indicates that the route the 1851 pioneers took into Little Salt Lake Valley likely followed a trail blazed by early explorers, including Miles Goodyear, over the Beaver Ridge south of Greenville and through California Hollow to Buckhorn Springs. An easier route, although a little longer, was later adopted and is now used by I-15.

The rugged travel through the icy mountains south of Beaver on the 10th of January caused wagon break-downs and otherwise slowed down some of the travelers. The pioneers split into three groups, with one advance party camping at Buckhorn Springs and another at Red Creek (Paragonah) while George

A. Smith and the main group camped at the north end of the Little Salt Lake Valley a few miles north of Buckhorn Springs.

Smith wrote of the occasion: "The Brethren wished to make a little noise on their arrival in the valley. They fired the Cannon and 24 stands of small arms in platoons, followed up by 3 cheers for Iron County and 3 for the Governor [of] Deseret. Every thing was conducted in good order, and without accident."

Shirts and Shirts recount: "But these celebrations met with an unexpected response. Those at Buckhorn Springs heard the firing and feared the main body was under Indian attack . . . The Red Creek group set a strong guard on their own camp while 'quite a company' of their men left immediately to ride the 15 or so miles back to the main campsite. It took until about 2:00 A.M. for everyone to be assured that no attack was underway."

Monday, 13 January 1851 the entire party arrived in Parowan and made preparations to build their new homes.

Shirts and Shirts provide this summary: "The successful journey augured well for the future. Despite the risks, exertions and discomforts posed by the long trek in the midst of a Utah winter, they had survived, cooperated, built bridges and cut roads for those who would follow. Brigham Young had sent a strong right arm into the southern wilderness."

TABLE TENNIS BRINGS THE FUN, COMPETITION AT USG

by Tom Zulewski

IRON COUNTY TODAY

Bruce Majors has been around the game of table tennis since he was 6 years old thanks to his father's coaching at a club in Salt Lake City for nearly 40 years. On June 15, Majors returned to the lead role and brought the game for "around 35 to 40 people" at different age levels and divisions for a Utah Summer Games round-robin tournament held inside the Sorensen PE building on the SUU campus.

"There's a big misconception about this game with the garage next to the pool table. It's very fast, faster than football and tennis. You're close to the table, and you have to be quick and agile to move around a lot," Majors said.

Majors competed in the open division that featured a round-robin tournament and best-of-5 matches in the with games to 11 points with a two-point margin to win. He lost a two-game lead in his semifinal match, but held on to win Game 5. He played through a minor injury and was swept in the final match, falling 12-10 in Game 3 after losing an 8-4 lead.

Still, the end result for everyone was good, clean fun in a comfortable indoor environment. Majors is hopeful the turnout for the 2025 edition of the USG will continue to grow.

Our new NHL franchise: The Utah Hockey Club

After all the hype, all the dreaming, and all the paperwork, we have an official name – at least temporarily – for our new National Hockey League team.

Insert official drumroll here as we say...

welcome to the Utah Hockey Club. The name was announced as a temporary placeholder for the 2024-25 season, and a fan vote for the final choice was in progress until June 20. These words will likely be in your hands by then, so the times ahead will be interesting when the results of the fan vote are released.

The six available choices included Blizzard, Mammoth, Outlaws, Venom and Yeti along with the Utah Hockey Club. The colors involved in the uniform are “rock black, salt white and mountain blue.”

Ryan Smith and his Smith Entertainment Group are team owners and home games will be played in the Delta Center in downtown Salt Lake City. Before any of these parts come to life, the Hockey Club will search for new players in the NHL Draft that happens June 28 and 29 at the Sphere in Las Vegas.

Utah will pick at No. 6 in the first round, followed by three picks in Round 2 – No. 38, 49 (from Washington) and 65 (from Florida, the likely Stanley Cup champion Panthers barring a spectacular collapse), then three more in the third on the way to a total of 13 selections.

Since there won't be room for everyone with the big club, a lot of the drafted players will likely end up at Utah's AHL affiliate, the Tucson Roadrunners. This feels more than slightly ironic after the Arizona Coyotes were disbanded.

While the Utah Jazz have their games broadcast on KJZZ, Utah Hockey Club games can be seen on KUPX, known as Utah 16. No official word yet on where the team can be heard on radio or who will be the team's broadcast voices.

Now, if we can just do something about the color schemes...

Congratulations to 2019 Desert Hills grad Drew Thorpe, who made his Major League Baseball debut for the Chicago White Sox on June 13. The right-handed pitcher allowed two runs – one earned – to the Seattle Mariners, but earned a no-decision when the Mariners rallied with two runs in the seventh inning for a 4-3 victory. Thorpe landed on the White Sox in a round-about way. After playing college baseball at Cal

Poly San Luis Obispo, he was taken by the New York Yankees in the second round of the 2022 MLB Amateur Draft. From there, Thorpe was part of a seven-player trade during the 2023 offseason that sent him to the San Diego Padres. The Yankees sent five players, including Thorpe, to Southern California in exchange for Trent Grisham and Juan Soto.

Before this season began, Thorpe was sent from the Padres to the White Sox on March 13 with three other players in exchange for pitcher Dylan Cease.

Now that you know the full story on Thorpe's travels, here's the situation he's gotten himself into after getting called up from Double-A Birmingham – the same place one legend named Michael Jordan played in his quest to be a baseball star that didn't go well. Through 70 games (as of June 13), the White Sox had an 18-52 record. The team is on the exact pace the 2003 Detroit Tigers had on the way to one of the worst seasons in American League history – 43-119.

Thorpe's second career start was scheduled for Father's Day June 16, another road matchup against the Arizona Diamondbacks. All we can do is hope this start will go as well as his first. The rest of the season will clearly be anyone's guess and all Thorpe can do is his best, no matter how big a mess the White Sox truly are.
